

ATI Physical Therapy Names John Sanford Vice President of Design, Construction and Facilities

BOLINGBROOK, Ill., Jan. 28, 2021 /PRNewswire/ -- ATI Physical Therapy (ATI), one of the nation's largest providers of physical therapy services, today announced the hiring of John Sanford as Vice President of Design, Construction and Facilities. In his new role, Sanford will be tasked with the oversight and management of ATI's clinic design and construction process as well as fleet maintenance programs as the brand continues to realize its growth goals in 2021 and beyond. He will report to Todd Powers, Senior Vice President of Real Estate.

An experienced design and construction professional with a background in architecture, Sanford is skillful in developing and transforming design ideas into high-quality spatial and aesthetic experiences in the commercial retail space. He will draw on his fine-tuned technical ability to execute facility designs with efficiency, quality, predictability and durability as ATI brings more clinics into the fold and expands its nationwide footprint even further.

"John's diverse skill set spanning the architecture, engineering and construction disciplines makes him well-equipped to support ATI's growth strategy in a way that holds quality and value in equal regard," said Powers, SVP of Real Estate. "His program management expertise and eye toward efficiency at every step of the construction process will be of great value to our development efforts. We're thrilled to have him join our team in such an important capacity as we continue to scale to meet the needs of our patients."

Sanford joins the ATI leadership team after a six-year stint at Gap, Inc. As senior director of architecture and engineering, he was responsible for multiple architectural and engineering portfolios, store development activities in Mexico, and oversight of the PMO execution function. Sanford led a team of portfolio and technical directors, project managers and consultants to deliver high-quality, cost-competitive and timely architectural and engineering services and deliverables relating to Gap Inc.'s built-store environment, supporting over $300 million in annual capital spend. He was also instrumental working across business lines to support the brand's real estate and store development objectives throughout North America.

"The foundation for delivering the best results starts with the team tackling the project, and I find great fulfillment in being a part of a team that both complements and challenges each other to achieve a collective goal," Sanford said. "I believe I've found that in ATI. I'm energized by the challenge of helping the brand scale in line with its growth goals and look forward to doing my part to better the in-clinic experience for our patients."
